COURSE REQUIREMENTS

1. Attend on time and participate in all class sessions. Bring textbooks to class on the first day and on other days as specified.
2. Read each of the textbooks and prepare a two page "Reading Analysis" for each. Cite useful insights, other benefits, limitations, and its overall value to you. Do not simply summarize the content, rather give your evaluation of it. These are due at the beginning of class on May 7.

The value of a week-long module is greatly enhanced when the student has had prior opportunity to read and reflect on the material. Consequently, late submission will result in a lower grade.

3. From the list provided on the first day of class, choose a reading on which to do a report for class. Make a 6 minute presentation, including your evaluation of it. Share one or two insights most valuable to you. Provide each student with a one to two page outline or summary of the contents and essential points.
4. An examination will be sent to you by email attachment on May 20. This exam should be taken and returned, postmarked or dated no later than May 27.
5. Write a research paper on a topic selected from sections VI to IX of the Course Outline (excluding VII-1, 2, & 5 and VIII-1). Each paper should be 11 to 13 pages double-spaced. These should be postmarked no later than August 7, 2005.

Do not simply summarize content from sources, but analyze and synthesize your research. Summaries and lists which exceed one-third of a page should be placed in an appendix. Be sure to cite your sources through a attached bibliography and footnotes. The purpose of the papers is to help you understand and develop material on topics of interest to you. Be concise. Include as many insights as practical. A minimum of 6 sources should be utilized in your research.

Format: Use Times- New Roman font, 12 point type. Make all margins 1” and place page numbers in the upper right hand corner. Quotes longer than two lines should be single-spaced and indented.

Recommendations for Papers. Strive to write at a graduate level, realizing that what may have been acceptable in undergraduate work may not be for Master’s degree papers. While the quality of your content is the most important, the use of poor grammar, punctuation, spelling, and style detracts. Deficiencies in these areas will result in a lower grade. (After graduation, they will reflect poorly on your ministry.) If possible, ask several people knowledgeable in English and writing to thoroughly critique your work before submission. Recognize, as all good writers do, that extensive rewriting is a normal part of writing well. Allow time for the process of revision, which may require several drafts.
